Hello everybody

If you're reading this, Snowy is probably gone in the world (This was scheduled for a time). I truly hope they don't find me again

I suppose this is a goodbye note?

I don't know where I will go through this, the fate of Snowy/Ashton will remain unknown until it has become clear. If I didn't return before next year, it's possibly safe to say that I am gone forever

To begin with, I know I'm not a perfect guy; I have failed to become a good friend to all of you. I acknowledge that my apology won't undo actions, nor do I expect forgiveness. I believed I was expressing gratitude and appreciation to everyone who supported me, but it turns out I was not. I'm genuinely sorry for all the people I've triggered with my attempt. I have made some mistakes that significantly worsened my anxiety and depression. How could I restart the button so everything can go back to normal? I can't imagine having some of my flaws that impacted other people negatively. I was such a horrible person and felt awful about myself.

About my academic pressure, I have been failing much lately in my college; some of my projects didn't make it. I feel I am losing hope in pursuing a career that I thought I would reach. I was constantly burned out and stressed about a lot of assignments, and I couldn't finish them. I have been slowing down due to my mental health issues and financial struggles caused by the passing of my relatives. I have been struggling with my mental health issues for long years, seeking help wasn't an easy option for me.

I think the world would've been normal without me, especially since I have mentioned that I influenced people awfully, I was so stupid. I tried to stop my endless pain of depression and judgements by taking all ways possible to solve what really disturbs me but all has gone through in vain. So I eventually chose to end the battle, my soul going away with me

There are also individuals, including my fellow creatives, who have encouraged me to work on the various cool projects we shared together, it really shows how amazing support is. Those were surely good days! It truly motivated me to pursue my art journey thanks to those big artists who have been there for me for months to years. It was really honorable to be with y'all.

However, those "Friendships" meant nothing to me, I don't belong to the ones who will speak whether discussion is ongoing or that I have nothing in common with them. I made a huge mistake by letting me go in the friend group myself though. Time passes, everything's falling apart when two people argue and choose to leave everything left I have given. I was often excluded in my own group of friends and I felt less important and less important to them since I'm only just there if something's interesting but that's all I have to do is nothing.

My career is nothing realistically I have chosen… but I believe you can make it happen to your dream! It's not your fault! I must thank you very much for being there with me.

I love all of you! Don’t forget to take care of yourselves!

Until we meet again